Come Filippo Turati spiega l'attitudine dei socialisti verso il Ministero.

(Per telefono alla Stampa).

Roma, 25, ore 22,15.

Circa la deliberazione presa dal gruppo parlamentare socialista (che, secondo alcuni, potrebbe avere conseguenze politiche imminenti e notevoli, o limitate, secondo altri, a dar soltanto nuovo impulso alla vita parlamentare, pur lasciando inalterata la situazione odierna del Ministero), ho creduto opportuno interessare subito il pensiero di Filippo Turati, uno dei massimi capi del gruppo, non solo del gruppo, ma dell'intera Camera eletta.

«Una Turati mi ha concesso nel massimo buon grado l'intervista, e mi ha dato anche la cortesia di rileggerla e di approvare o, al più, di farla rettificare a telefonata».

«Il mio ordine del giorno — chiari al f. co. Turati — non lascia ad alcuno la libertà di fronte al Governo la teoria delle cose per così dire».

«Sì, ed in questo senso, — risponde l'interpellato, — che non essendo ancora un partito di governo, e soprattutto non avendo noi, del partito socialista, fra i partiti di governo di 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64,
